VOL 29 BLOOMSBURG, PA., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1894. NO 47

CAN HE RAISE THE DEAD?

Dr. Gibbons Will Try To Resuscitate An Electrocuted Murderer.

Dr. P. J. Gibbons, of Syracuse, whose idea of restoring life in persons shocked to apparent death by electri city by means of a special apparatus invented by himself to produce artificial respiration, says he has received permission from Governor Flower to experiment on Charles Wilson, the murderer now under sentence of death at the Auburn State prison. Dr. Gibbons was jubilant when he received the message. Wilson has already consented to the experiment, with the understanding that should it be a success Governor Flower will extend clemency in his behalf. His electrocution takes place this week.

Dr. Gibbons said that the method of procedure would probably be for the Governor to commute the prisoner's sentence to life imprisonment at a moment which will entail the arrival of the papers after the man had been electrocuted.

"If the man returns to consciousness the papers will act," said the doctor. "If we are unsuccessful the papers will be too late to save the man's life."

The doctor does not think that it will be requisite to change the electrocution laws, as he is of the opinion that a continuous current, if applied in sufficient quantity, will cause death.

Dr. Gibbons claims to have partially resuscitated murderer John Johnson, after his electrocution at Auburn, when he was peremptorily ordered by the warden to desist, and the body was sent to the autopsy table. Dr. Gibbons' experiment with Johnson was made two hours after the current was applied and without any of the apparatus that he has since devised for such work. He declares that neither Johnson nor Taylor, both of whom were electrocuted at Auburn was killed by the electrical current, but that death was caused by the autopsy.

Another advocate of this theory is M. D. Ansonval, the eminent French scientist, and Dr. A. H. Goelet, an American, agrees with him. The theory of all these gentlemen is that the effect of the electrical shock is simply suspended animation, and that if artificial respiration is promptly resorted to the subject can in every instance be revived.

George Westinghouse has always insisted that the electric death was a sham, and that a New York commission headed by Elbridge T. Gerry had added the autopsy clause to the law so as to make it certain that the man was dead.

GIVE US THE NEWS.

If you know of an accident, a fire, a death, a birth, a marriage, a new building or improvement of any kind, or if you have lost anything, found anything, want help, want a situation, want board, want to loan or borrow money; in short if you know any thing, or want anything, let us know it, and we will print it without charge to regular patrons. We gladly mention in the personal column those who are visiting in town, or towns people who are away from home. Of course, it is necessary for us to find it out, before we can print it. Give us all the news.

Free Wool and Active Mills.

A recent visit to the Woolen Mill and the cheerful words of one of the affable proprietors, Mr. J. M. Staver, convinced our reporter that the hum of their machinery meant business without regard to tariff. These gentlemen, Messrs Caswell and Staver, have an extensive plant, and are in full operation on full time. Though the margin of profits in this as in other industries is small to day, quick sales and small profits well warrant the activity they display.

Market street below the railroad will soon be built up with nice homes, no doubt. A brick pavement has been laid along the Waller land and trees have been planted, and the land on both sides of the street will probably be soon thrown on the market for building lots.

Market Street Grading and Paving.

In a recent walk for "locals" a COLUMBIAN reporter took a stroll to the river along the proposed continuation of Market street. The undertaking he found to be the greatest now in progress in town, and to be in conformity with the will of the late and respected D. J. Waller. The street being the widest in town (75 feet) its grading and filling and paving is no doubt more laborious and expensive than may appear to a casual observer—it is equivalent to the filling of valleys and the removing of hills here and there all of which costs money, provides labor and improves property as the devisor no doubt contemplated. The filling in several places is to the height of 16 or 18 feet, and the vast quantity of earth necessary is taken from the hills projecting above the grade. Some two or three dozen men are steadily employed in this commendable undertaking at present.

At the canal bridge crossing we noticed surveyors busily engaged taking bearings and establishing grade preparatory to removing the old bridge and embankment and replacing it with a handsome turn bridge, so that when this obstruction is reduced to proper grade one of the finest drives in three counties may be found from the head to foot of Market street, or from Main street to the river. There is no doubt that when the trees that are being planted shall have grown sufficient to shade the pavements this street will be to Bloomsburg what the Boulevard is to Paris, one of the finest thoroughfares in the place.

The Towel-Man and the Cloak-Man.

Out in Denver, Colorado, they are choking women to death with towels, while the terror of Bloomsburg is the "cloak man," whoever or whatever he, she or it is. But the Colorado victims are thus far confined to women of ill fame, while the "cloak-man," of Bloomsburg is said to be bad enough to tackle any-body but the police. In consequence of the ravages wrought by strangulation with towels in Denver, the women of ill repute are said to be terrorized. No less than three murders of this kind have occurred within a week, they having taken place in what is now known as "Strangler's Row," on Market street. The case is sad, indeed, and the excitement among those of easy virtue out west is almost equal to that occasioned by "Jack the Ripper" in London a few years ago. The last victim of the "towel-man" in Denver was Miss Kiku Oyama, a Japanese girl 24 years old, who ran the house of ill repute. The mode of putting her to death was exactly similar to that employed in murdering Lena Tapper and Marie Contassit. After partially choking the victim the work is completed by tying the towel tight around the neck when death soon takes place. As between the "cloak-man" and the "towel-man," the Bloomsburg rascal is a gentleman.

The Elevator Works.

A brief interview of our reporter at the Elevator Works, a new and thriving industry in Bloomsburg, reveals that they are running on full time and to good advantage to themselves and this community. They are at present engaged on two hydraulic elevators for the Jayne estate of Philadelphia; these are the first ordered of this kind and they are now well under way. They have also an order for a three-ton freight elevator for Harrison & Co., of Philadelphia, besides several hand-power elevators for Quakertown and elsewhere. Negotiations are also pending for two large passenger direct electric elevators; these are ordered by the London Globe Insurance Co., of New Orleans. Though comparatively new to the town this plant has a healthy and promising business appearance, and we found the gentlemanly proprietors quite sanguine of its success.

A FURNITURE TRUST.

The representative furniture manufacturers and dealers held a meeting at Williamsport recently for the purpose of organizing a furniture trust. All of the towns within a radius of fifty miles were represented. The object is to arrange for better facilities to carry their goods to market and also to make and control a scale of prices. Permanent organization will be effected December 10.

All cocked and primed for game, and with a fine looking bird dog to assist them, W. W. Lowry and W. A. Snyder started out on a hunt on Wednesday morning. As to the likelihood of their success or failure your deponent saith not.

Equitable Assessment for Columbia Co.

With the commendable view of comparing and equalizing the valuation of all taxable property the county commissioners recently issued a call to all the assessors within the county and in accordance therewith they assembled at the county seat on Saturday, November 17th.

Commissioner Swank called the assessors to order after which an organization was effected by the selection of H. H. Brown, of Scott township, as chairman, and Wm. Mensch, of Montour, as secretary.

Upon a call of the roll, by townships the following named assessors were found to be present and in sympathy with the object of the call:

Beaver, Geo. Ulshafer; Benton, Laf. Keeler; Bloom, east, A. Herbine; Bloom, west, I. Hagenbuch; Briarcreek, Wm. Lamon; Catawissa twp., J. W. Rider; Catawissa borough, Lewis Hayhurst; Centralia borough, D. H. Walsh; Centre, Harry Ringrose; Cleveland, F. P. Small; Conyngham, Daniel Goodman; Fishingcreek, Isaac Fahringer; Franklin, Clark Yost; Locust, Wilson Rhoades; Main, N. H. W. Brown; Mifflin, J. E. Snyder; Montour, Wm. Mensh; Mt. Pleasant, A. V. Kressler; Orange, John E. Hayhurst; Pine, R. M. Potter; Roaringcreek, Jerre Kunkle; Scott, H. H. Brown; Sugarloaf, P. K. Shultz.

The assessors of the townships that failed to respond at roll call from sickness or other cause, were:

Berwick, W. F. Ruch; Greenwood, Chas. Dildine; Hemlock, J. H. Faust; Jackson, T. F. Young; Madison, E. F. Welliver; Millville, T. F. Stadler.

The comparison of valuations revealed that there has been and is still an unjust disparity, that should and no doubt will be rectified so far as this county is concerned. The meeting was an interesting one, and the object of its call is commendable.

An orchestral concert will be given in the Bloomsburg Opera House, Wednesday evening, November 28th. The orchestra, under the direction of Chas. P. Elwell, will consist of 14 pieces, including Miss Maude Runyon, pianist, and Mr. P. F. Madden, drums and traps of Baur's Orchestra, Scranton. The orchestra will be assisted by the following vocalists, Mrs. Annie Miller Melick, soprano, Mrs. Beth Runyon Hodgden, soprano, and Mr. Orval H. Yetter, Basso; and there will also be a clarinet solo by Mr. Morton Stevens.

The program will include Overture to Martha, Flotow, Forge in the Forest and idyllic descriptive piece, including imitation of forge, etc. "The Village Orchestra," a burlesque upon an amateur orchestra in its first attempts at Music, Selection from Offenbach's beautiful comic opera. "The Brigand," as well as marches, waltzes, etc,

They have also an order for 15 snow-plows to be made of iron and steel. The car company is moving under a full head of steam.

A MAN'S WOMAN.

He is not sweet, the woman that I love,
Nor is she fair,
For wise in any lore that books can tell,
And yet she knows the secret of a spell
From f-et to hair.
Ah, no, not wise, the woman that I love.

She is not fair, the woman that I love,
Nor is she wise,
Nor sweet, and yet, she speaks from feet to hair,
With turn of waist, or throat, and I am there,
Held in her eyes.
Ah, no, not fair, the woman that I love.

She is not wise, the woman that I love,
Nor is she sweet,
Nor fair. The spell she weaves, is it of sense?
'Tis undefined and subtle, yet intense—
Flame without heat.
Ah, no, not sweet, the woman that I love.

Not fair, nor sweet, nor wise is she I love,
Beyond a name,
Incarnate mystery of negatives
Unsolved, unsolvable; a spell taut lives!
Elusive flame,
That which she is, the woman that I love.
—Old English Poem.

THE LETTER TO ROSE.

Night had fallen on the banks of the Chippaloga, and the fight was over. It had been hot and fierce while it lasted, and the battered remnant of Southern troops, though at last they had been forced to fight, leaving one-third their force on the field, had thinned the numbers of their conquerors.

To Roland Pearse, monotonously tramping on sentry duty along the track worn by his own feet in the snow at a tantalizing distance from the nearest of the small watch-fires which gleamed around the central one, where the officers were sunk in sleep, it seemed as if the dawn would never come. A year's hard campaigning had toughened him to all accidents of war, and the coldest and longest night's watch after the hardest day's fighting or marching came to him, as a rule, naturally enough. But he had been wounded in the fight, though not seriously, yet painfully, and between the consequent loss of blood and the bitter cold was weary well nigh to death. In the dead stillness of the night the monotonous chant of the river near at hand combined with weakness and weariness to stupefy his senses, and for minutes together he shuffled along the track he had worn in the snow with a quite unconscious persistence, awakening at the end of his beat with a nerve-shattering start, and falling asleep again ere he had well turned to retrace his steps. At last, a deeper doze was terminated by his falling at full length in the snow. He gathered his stiff, cold limbs together, and limped along shivering, swearing at the snow which had penetrated different loopholes of his ragged uniform, and, slowly melted by contact with his scarce warmer skin, served at least to keep him awake. He drew from his pocket a flask containing a modicum of whiskey. It was little enough—he could have gratefully drunk twice the amount; but, with a self-denial taught by many bitter experiences, he took only a mouthful and reserved the rest for future needs.

With a vague idea that a new beat would somewhat relieve the monotony of his watch, he struck into another track and trudged resolutely at right angles with his former course, the two lines of footsteps making a gigantic cross upon the snow. His former lassitude was again beginning to conquer him, when it was suddenly dissipated by a voice which rang out on the stillness with startling suddenness, instinct with anguish:

"If you have the heart of a man in your breast, for God's sake, help me!"

Twenty feet from where he stood Roland beheld the figure of a man raised feebly on one elbow above the level of the snow. There was only just light enough to distinguish it. He approached it cautiously, with his rifle advanced and shooting rapid glances from the prostrate figure to every clump of snow-covered herbage or inequality of ground which might afford shelter for an ambuscade.

"I am alone," the man said.

He spoke each word upon a separate sob of pain and weakness. He wore the Southern uniform, and Roland saw that one arm and one leg dragged from his body, helpless and distorted. An old sabre cut traversed his face from the cheek-bone to the temple. He looked the very genius of defeat.

"I am dying!" he panted to Roland.

The young man pulled his beard as he looked down at him, and shrugged his shoulders with a scarce perceptible gesture.

"I know," said the Southerner, "I don't growl at that. I've let daylight in a few of your fellows in my time, and would again if I got the chance. Now it's my turn, and I'm going to take it quiet. But I want to say something—to write something to my wife in Charleston. Will you do that for me? It isn't much for a man to ask of another. I don't want to die and rot in this cursed wilderness without saying good-by to her."

"You must look sharp, then," said Roland, kneeling beside him, "for I shall be called into camp in a few minutes."

He took an old letter from his pocket and with numbed fingers began to write, at the wounded man's dictation, on its blank side.

"My darling Rose," he began.

Roland started as if stung by a snake, and bent a sudden look of questioning anger on his companion's face. The Southerner looked back at him for a moment with a look of surprise. Then his face changed.

"Jim Vickers!" said Roland.

"Roland Pearse!" cried the other, and for a moment there was silence between them.

"Last time your name passed my lips," said Roland, slowly, "I swore to put a bullet in you on sight."

"I guess you needn't," said Vickers; "I've got two already. Not that I'm particular to a bullet or so, only you might finish the letter first, anyhow. For God's sake, Pearse," he continued, sudden emotion conquering his daredevil cynicism, "write the letter! It's for Rose. She won't have a cent in the world if I can't send her the news I want you to write, and she and the child will starve. I got her by a trick, I know, and a nasty trick, too; but I'd have done murder to get her. She was the one woman I ever cared a straw for really. And she loves me, too. Shoot me, if you like; but for God's sake write the letter."

Roland bent his head over the scrap of paper again.

"Go on," he said, hoarsely, and Vickers went on, panting out the words with an eagerness which proved the sincerity of his affection. The letter had regard to the disposition of certain sums of money for which the voucher had been destroyed by fire during the siege of Philadelphia two days previously. It was scarcely ended when a bugle sounded from the camp.

"That's the sentinel's recall," said Roland. "I must get in. I'll forward the letter the first chance I get."

He rose. Vickers, with a dumb agony of grateful entreaty in his face, feebly held up his left hand—the right arm was shattered. After a moment's hesitation Roland bent and took it.

"Here," he said, "take this."

He dropped his flask beside him. "Keep your heart up; perhaps you ain't as bad as you think. I'll see if I can get help for you."

Tears started to the wounded wretch's eyes.

"Rose had better have taken you, I guess," he said. Ronald turned sharply away.

"I'll be back as quickly as I can," he said, and ploughed his way back into camp without a single backward glance. Coming to a large tent, the only one in the camp, roughly run up as a temporary hospital, he passed between two rows of prostrate figures, sunk in the sleep of exhaustion or tossing in agony, to where a man in the uniform of an army surgeon was bending, pipe in mouth, over the body of a patient. "I want to speak to you when you've finished, Ned."

The surgeon nodded without raising his eyes, completed his task, ran his blood-stained fingers wearily through his hair and turned to Roland with a yawn and a shiver.

"That's the last of 'em," he said. "I've been at it since nightfall, and I'm dead beat. Cut it short, old man; we start in an hour, and I meant to get a wink of sleep."

"I'm afraid you'll have to do without it," said Roland. "Do you remember Jim Vickers?"

"Jim Vickers," repeated the surgeon. "Oh, yes! The man who married Rose Bishop."

Roland winced and nodded.

"He's out there, shot in the arm and leg. Says he's dying. He didn't know me, and asked me to write a word for him to Rose—to his wife. I want you to come and have a look at him."

The surgeon shrugged, with a half yawn.

"He's a reb, I suppose? Haven't seen him in our crowd."

"Yes," said Roland, "but one man is pretty much the same to you as another, I reckon, and—you know Rose. You might save him."

Ned shrugged again, tossed some lint and other necessaries into a bag on the table, and they set out together. They found Vickers asleep, with the empty whiskey flask lying on the snow beside him.

There was a ruined shed at a hundred yards' distance, to which they carried the wounded man, who woke and groaned as he was raised. Arrived under shelter, Ned silently betook himself to examining Vickers' wounds. Arm and leg were both shattered, and three of his ribs were broken by a horse's hoof. Roland watched his friend's face, but it wore the aspect of even gravity common to the faces of men of his profession engaged at their work, and nothing was to be learned from it. His task finished, he patted his patient's shoulder, collected his tools and left the shed. Roland followed him to the door.

"What do you think? Can he pull through?"

"He would with proper nursing and good food; not without."

"Can we take him with us?"

"No, the colonel wouldn't hear of it. We have to join Meade at Petersburg in two days, and we can't afford to be bothered with lame prisoner. Leave him some biscuit and a bottle of whiskey, and let him take his chance. We've done all we could."

"I can't leave him," said Roland.

"You've got mighty fond of him all of a sudden," said Ned, with something of a sneer."

"I'm as fond of him as I always was," answered Roland. "It's Rose."

"Well," said the other, after a moment's silence, and with the air he might have worn had he found himself forced to apply the knife to the flesh of his own child, "if you want my opinion you shall have it. You'll do a long sight better business for Rose if you let the fellow die. And, besides, you can't save him. He'd take months to heal up in hospital, with every care and attention."

"I might take it," said Roland.

"And be shot for desertion?"

"That's as may be. The chances are I shouldn't be missed till you were too far away to send back for me. I must go and answer to my name, and then see if I can't drop behind."

Ned held his head in his hands as if it would else burst with the folly of his friend's ideas.

"I can't stay here all day talking —— nonsense," he said angrily. "I'm off into camp."

He strode away, and Roland kept pace with him. He did not need his friend's assurance of the folly of the act he meditated. He quite recognized that, but it was only in the background of his thoughts, which were filled with the memory of a woman's face. How could he leave the man Rose loved to die, while any possible effort of his might suffice to save him?

"Somebody might come along and give me a hand to get him to the nearest town," said Roland, vaguely, but tenaciously.

"The nearest town is thirty miles away. How would you get him there? It's impossible. Besides, look at this." He pointed to the sky, an even blank of thick gray cloud. "That'll be falling in another hour. You'd be snowed up. And then—hang it all, man, I must be as mad as you are to discuss the thing at all. You don't suppose you're going to get leave of absence to nurse a Johnny Reb?"

The first flakes of the coming snowstorm fell as the detachment started. It marched in very loose order, for the road was rough, the snow deep, most of the men more or less broken with wounds and fatigue, and it was known that no enemy was within sixty miles Roland fell, little by little, to the rear, where the clumsy country wagons lumbered along full of the wounded under Ned's charge.

"You'll take care of the letter," he whispered, and thrust it into his friend's hand. "Good-bye. I shall fall in with the next detachment if I pull through long enough. If not——"

He nodded, and at a sudden turn of the road, here quickly surrounded by maple and hemlock, darted among the trees, and listened, with his heart in his ears, to the jungle and clatter of arms as his comrades marched on. It died away upon the snow-laden air, and he retraced his steps to the shed with an armful of dry leaves and twigs, with which, by the sacrifice of one of his few remaining cartridges, he speedily made a blazing fire. Vickers lay quiet, watching him through half-shut lids.

"Say, Roland," he said, presently, "what sort of game is this?"

"I'm going to see if I can pull you through," said Roland, with an affectation of cheerfulness.

"You can't," said Vickers; "I heard what Ned said just now. I'm booked for the journey through, I know it. Don't be a fool. Follow the boys and leave me here. I'm beyond any man's help. You won't? Well, you always were a nutmeg-headed sort of creature. I never knew you to have more than one idea at a time, and that one wasn't worth much, as a general thing. But this is madness, sheer, stark madness! Look at the snow! Another hour or two and we shall be snowed up. It's just chucking a good life after a bad one. I know you ain't doing it for me. It's for Rose. Well, if it was any use, I wouldn't say no. But it isn't. I shall be a dead man in twenty-four hours at most. Nothing can save me."

"I'm just going to the wood," said Roland, taking up his gun, and speaking in a quite casual tone. "If there's any game about, this weather will drive it under cover. I'll be back presently, anyhow."

He flung some of the broken timber of the shed upon the fire and went out.

He had not taken six paces through the blinding flakes when Vicker's voice rang out with startling loudness and suddenness. "Good-by, Roland!" and a loud report seemed to shake the crazy old hut to its foundation.

Roland ran back. Vickers was lying dead, with firelight playing brightly on the barrel of a revolver clinched in his left hand.

Ten minutes later he was lying in a deep snow drift, and Roland was tramping through the snow on the track of his detachment.

Slept and Died in a Coffin.

An interesting and original person, named Vaszary Rovacs, died in Hungary recently. He had been a Honved in 1848, and then became a popular comic actor. When too old to go on the boards he discovered a strange occupation, which harmonized with the hobbies he entertained all his life. For a small fee he carried the wooden cross customary in Hungary in all the funeral processions of the capital. The last time he was noticed in this part, which (our correspondent says) he played like a true actor, was at Kossuth's funeral. With his snow-white beard and flowing white hair, the wooden cross in his right hand, and the left on his sword, he was a conspicuous and dramatic figure. For the last twenty years of his life he slept in his coffin, which, with his own hand, he had painted in the national colors of Hungary. He died in the coffin, and his last wish was that the lid should be merely nailed over him, and that no one should touch his dead body.—London Daily News.

Who is the Owner?

The law of finding is not generally understood, but it was declared many years ago, and it is well to note the case and the decision. A visitor to a store found a wallet containing a sum of money. He handed the wallet with its contents to the merchant, to be returned to the owner. After three years the owner having failed to appear, the finder demanded the wallet and the money from the merchant. The latter refused to deliver them on the ground that they were found on his premises. The finder then sued the shopkeeper. It was decided that, against all the world but the owner, the title of the finder is perfect. The receiver of an article found is only a trustee, first of the owner, then of the finder, if the owner does not appear. The receiver has no right to keep an article against the finder any more than the finder has to keep it against the owner.—Buffalo Commercial.

"Hell-Fire Dick."

Gen. Sir William Olpherts, V. C., is the possessor of a unique sobriquet. The manner in which he obtained it shows the kind of metal of which the fine old hero is made. At the time he was serving before Lucknow he was a dashing, daring captain. He was told that one of his guns would burst if it were served with another shell like the last. But another shell was necessary, and Olpherts was determined it should be fired. His gunners hesitated, and without another word the captain seated himself astride the gun. "Arrah, ye devils," said he, "will ye fire now?" They did; the gun did not burst; and the captain dismounted amid the cheers of his men. This is how the general is known unto this day as "Hell-fire Dick." But why "Dick" instead of "Bill?" That, however, must be asked the soldiers.—London Leader.

The Khedive's Amusements.

Although the youthful khedive of Egypt does not smoke and is strictly obedient to the koran's injunction not to use strong drink, he finds various ways of amusing himself. One is in his yachts, of which he has four, the largest being about as big as an ocean liner. Under his rule woman's position is fast improving in Egypt and harem life is disappearing. By Mohammedan law an Egyptian is permitted to have four wives, but at present it is considered bad form for a man to have more than one.

Republican Prophecy of Eternal Death for Democrats All Wrong.--The Presidential Message.--The Bond Issue Justified by Precedent.--Conjecture as to Attitude of Ransom and Gorman.--The W. C. T. U. Criticise Mrs. Cleveland for Cracking a bottle of Wine.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, November 19, 1894.

Those republicans and populists who are trying so hard to make some body think that they believe the democratic party, as a national organization, is dead, are merely making themselves ridiculous. The democratic party, which, to go no further back than the memory of every middle-aged man, made six successive unsuccessful Presidential campaigns—defeated in five at the polls and in one at the hands of an abortion known as the electoral commission—is not to be killed by dissension among a few of its prominent members which resulted in a stay-at-home vote laige enough to defeat it in a Congressional election. On the contrary, that defeat will eventually make the democratic party stronger than ever before, because it will result in showing some of the prominent experimenters that deviations from the established principles of the party will not be tolerated by its voters; that thousands, aye millions of good democrats will refuse to endorse any half-and-half principles, preferring defeat to compromise with principles they have been taught to oppose. The recent election was a bitter lesson, but the future will prove that it was a useful one.

President Cleveland is not spending much time at the White House just now, because the time is short between this and the assembling of Congress, and his annual message to Congress, which will be one of the most important to the country and to the democratic party he has ever written, requires his entire time, and he can work undisturbed at his country residence, something which experience has shown him he cannot do in his office at the White House. During his vacation the President devoted much time to studying the financial system of the country, which is generally admitted to be radically defective, and the result of that study will be shown in the recommendations of his message to Congress.

No democrat can possibly regret the issue of bonds, officially announced this week by Secretary Carlisle, more than does President Cleveland and the members of his cabinet, but in the face of the necessity for preserving the national credit, and in the absence of any other method, owing to the system inherited from a long series of republican adminstrations, regrets were idle and action imperative. When a merchant finds his credit endangered, owing to his receipts being less than his expenditures, he cannot afford to waste time in regrets because those expenditures are largely the result of extravagant contracts made by his predecessor. His credit must be protected and nothing will do that but prompt payment of his obligations as they mature, and to do that he must have money and it can only be had by borrowing it on his note. That he does, trusting to his ability to stop the leaks in his business and make it profitable in order to pay it back. That is precisely the position of the administration in announcing an issue of bonds.

Senators Ransom and Gorman had a casual meeting and a friendly conversation in the Capitol one day this week, and straightway a story was started that they had evolved a plan by which a democrat was to be elected at an extra session of the North Carolina legislature to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Vance, and Senator Ransom was to resign and be elected for a full term beginning March 4, 1895, at the same extra session. Verily, "the wicked fleeth when no man pursueth."

Secretary Herbert left Washington to-night for Mobile, Ala., where he goes to take part in the ceremonies attending the public reception by the citizens of Mobile in honor of the cruiser Montgomery, which is to be held next Monday. Secretary Smith has also gone south, but his errand is one of private business, connected with the trial of an important lawsuit, at Atlanta, in which he is one of the counsels.

A striking exhibition of fanaticism run wild is given by the criticism of Mrs. Cleveland by members of a Pennsylvania branch of the W. C. T. U., because she followed the usual custom and broke a bottle of champagne in christening the steamship St. Louis, launched at Philadelphia last Monday. The criticism is all the more senseless because Mrs. Cleveland is a consistent advocate of temperance, never drinking wine at her own or anyone else's table. In this case she was an invited guest and had no more to do with what was to be used at the christening than a guest would have to do with what was served on your table.

BIDS ASKED FOR NEW BONDS.

Secretary Carlisle Will Put Fifty Millions of Five Percent Bonds on Market, and in Denominations as Low as $50, Placing them Within Reach of All Who Have Gold.

WASHINGTON, November 13, '94. Secretary Carlisle late this afternoon, as had been anticipated for several days, issued his call for bids for $50,000,000 five per cent ten year bonds, interest to be paid in coin, which is interpreted to mean gold. The only material changes made in the present call from that issued January 14 last are the omission of the upset or minimum price, which would be accepted, and the notice that the proposals for the present issue must be sealed.

It is confidently expected at the Treasury Department that an amount will be realized considerably in excess of that received from the February issue. This expectation is based upon the fact that there are exceptionally large amounts of money now lying idle and seeking investments in the money centres of the country, and upon the further fact that the February issue is now quoted at $118.50, or about two per cent. above the price which would yield three per cent. From the last issue there was realized $58,660,917.63, and of this amount $52,850,264.24 was in gold coin, $5,810,420 in gold certificates and $233.39 in other money, which the Sub Treasuries were compelled to take in making change. While these amounts were actually paid into the Treasury in gold or its equivalent, a very considerable amount of gold was withdrawn from the Sub-Treasuries for the express purpose of using it again in paying for the bonds.

The exact amount thus withdrawn cannot be ascertained, but the best judgment obtainable is that it approximated $15,000,000. With a view of a more exact estimate of the amounts which may be withdrawn between new and the settlement of all accounts under the call, the Sub Treasuries will from this date keep a record of all deposits of legal tenders made in exchange for gold, and the names of the firms or persons making them.

SECRETARY CARLISLE'S CIRCULAR.

The following is the Secretary's circular for bids:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., November 13, 1894.

"By virtue of the authority contained in the act of Congress entitled, an act to provide for the resumption of specie payments, approved January 14, 1875, the Secretary of the Treasury hereby gives public notice that sealed proposals will be received at the Treasury Department, office of the Secretary, until 12 o'clock, noon, on the 24th, day of November, 1894, for United States 5 per cent. bonds in either registered or coupon form, dated February 1, 1894, redeemable in coin at the pleasure of the Government after ten years from the date of their issue, and bearing interest payable quarterly, in coin, at the rate of 5 per centum per annum.

"Bidders whose proposals are accepted will be required to pay 20 per cent. in gold coin or gold certificates upon the amounts of their bids as soon as they receive notice of the acceptance of such bids, and to pay in like coin or certificates an additional 20 per cent. at the expiration of each ten days thereafter until the whole is paid: but they may at their option pay the entire amount of their bids when notified of acceptance, or at any time when an instalment is payable. The first payment, however, of not less than 20 per cent, must be made when the bidder receives notice of the acceptance of his proposal.

DENOMINATIONS OF THE BONDS.

"The denominations of the bonds will be $50 and upward, and bidders will, in their proposals, state the denominations desired, whether registered or coupon, the price which the bidder proposes to pay, the place where it is desired that the bonds shall be delivered and the office, whether that of the Treasurer of the United States or an Assistant Treasurer of the United States, where it will be most convenient for the bidder to deposit the amounts of his payments.

"The bonds will be dated February 1, 1894, in order to make the proposed issue uniform as to date with the existing issue; but interest thereon will begin November 1, 1894, and bidders will be required to pay accrued interest at the rate of five per cent. on the face value of their bonds from November 1 to the date or dates of payment. The total issue of bonds, in pursuance of this notice, will not exceed the sum of $50,000,000.

"The Secretary of the Treasury hereby expressly reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

"All proposals should be addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D, C., and should be distinctly marked. Proposals for the purchase of five per cent. bonds. Blank forms for proposals may be had on application to the Secretary of the Treasury."

The Victorious Japanese Don't Care to Quit Fighting.

WASHINGTON, November 13.—The prospects for United States mediation between China and Japan look less bright to-day. Six days have passed since Secretary Gresham cabled Minister Dun at Tokio offering the good offices of President Cleveland as mediator in case Japan joined China in requesting it, and as yet Japan has not accepted.

This leads to the conclusion that the Japanese Government looks with suspicion at the Chinese motives in inaugrating the negotiations, and at China's intention that she will expect Great Britain, the recognized friend of China, to co operate with the United States in the settlement.

Moreover, it is gradually becoming apparent that in the event of mediation China would expect Japan to stop her victorious march through China, which has already resulted in the capture of many Chinese towns and the overrunning of Northeastern China, and to actually lay down her arms, withdraw her troops to Japan, restore China her captured towns and establish a status exactly as it was when the war began.

The belief is growing that the delay of the Japanese Government is due largely to these considerations and that no acceptance of American mediation is likely until China modifies her expectations and makes them so definite as to be beyond future doubt of diplomatic misconstruction.—The Times.

The President and Mr. Carlisle.

The attention of the President being recently called to the statement contained in certain newspapers to the effect that there had been a disagreement between him and Mr. Carlisle in regard to the issue of bonds and other matters, and intimating that such disagreement might result in the Secretary's retirement from the Cabinet, the President emphatically denied the entire "batch of silly misstatements," and said: "Never since our association together has there been the slightest unpleasantness or difference concerning the affairs of the Treasury Department or any other matter. I have every reason to believe that his attachment to me is as sincere and as great as mine is for him. I should be much afflicted if anything should cause him to entertain the thought of giving up his position while he is doing so much for his country. We have agreed exactly as to the issue of bonds and there has been no backwardness on his part on that subject. I see it is said that I am formulating a financial scheme. If such a scheme is presented it will be the work of the Secretary of the Treasury and I shall indorse and support it.

"The trouble seems to be that those charged with the executive duties of the government do not appear willing at all times to take the counsel of the newspapers and make public all they intend to do."

"Yield not to misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it.—Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

The Chinese plan of decapitating whipped generals don't seem to stimulate the rank and file of the Chinese army, or to prevent the loss of battles. Harper's Magazine

IN 1895.

The Simpletons, a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December Number, 1894, and continued to November, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist in fiction, and The Simpletons may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked Tribby—the most successful story of the year. Another leading feature will be the Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc, by the Sieur Louis de Conte, Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of living American magazine writers will present the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January Number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on Charleston and the Carolinas, the first of a series of southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empires The next volume of HARPER'S MAGAZINE will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict the present life there. Julian Ralph will prepare for the MAGAZINE a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of Chinese Life and Manners. Besides the long stories, there will begin in the January Number the first chapters of A Three-Part Novelette by Richard Harding Davis—the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the MAGAZINE.

Elegant and exclusive designs for Out-door and In-door Toilettes drawn from Worth models by Sandoz and Chapuis, are an important feature. Children's Clothing receives practical attention. A fortnightly Pattern-sheet Supplement enables readers to cut and make their own gowns. The woman who takes HARPER'S BAZAR is prepared for every occasion in life, ceremonious or informal, where beautiful dress is requisite.

An American Serial, Doctor Warrick's Daughters, by Rebecca Harding Davis, a strong novel of American life, partly laid in Pennsylvania and partly in the far South, will occupy the last half of the year.

Harper's Weekly

IN 1895.

HARPER'S WEEKLY is a pictorial history of the times. It presents every important event promptly, accurately, and exhaustively in illustration and descriptive text of the highest order.

The manner in which, during 1894, it has treated the Chicago Railroad Strikes and the China-Japanese War, and the amount of light it was able to throw on Korea the instant attention was directed to that little-known country, are examples of its almost boundless resources. Julian Ralph, the distinguished writer and correspondent, has been sent to the seat of war, and there joined by C. D. Weldon, the well-known American artist, now for many years resident in Japan, who has been engaged to co-operate with Mr. Ralph in sending to HARPER'S WEEKLY exclusive information and illustration.

During 1895 every vital question will be discussed with vigor and without prejudice in the editorial columns, and also in special articles by the highest authorities in each department. Portraits of the men and women who are making history, and powerful and caustic political cartoons, will continue to be characteristic features. This busy World, with its keen and kindly comment on the lesser doings of the day, will remain a regular department.

Fiction. There will be two powerful serials, both handsomely illustrated—The Red Cockade, a stirring romance of olden days by Stanley J. Weyman, and a novel of New York, entitled The Son of his Father, by Brander Matthews—several novelettes, and many short stories by popular writers.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1894.

On the first Monday of next month Congress will again convene. The annual reports of the heads of the various governmental departments, now being put in type by the Public Printer will be spread before Congress, and rumor already has it that a renewal of the tariff clash is promised in the Senate.

In the victorious Republican campus there is already a peck of trouble brewing. It is settling down upon the victors dense and dark thus early. Just wait till the gymnastic Reed gets his Indian clubs under full swing in the reorganization of the House, or until the aspiring Cameron commences to tickle them up in the Senate, with his eagle eye resting upon a Presidential nomination in the rather dim future.

It is said the friends of Judge Sittser have decided to contest the election of President Judge in the Wyoming—Sullivan district. They claim they have already information of enough votes which were cast for Judge Sittser and thrown out to give him the election by a substantial majority. Many of them are Republican tickets with a cross in the circle and also a cross opposite Judge Sittser's name. Such votes, Judge Archbald, of Scranton, decides in a similar case, must be counted as the voter intended, that is for the Republican ticket with the exception of Judge and for Judge Sittser. An investigation into this matter will do no injustice to either candidate.

As usual the ubiquitous reporter of Washington has already outlined the Administration's financial policy for the future. In the outlining it will be observed that the national banking laws are to be changed if they accord with the forthcoming President's proclamation which the aforesaid reporter seems to know all about Secretary Carlisle, whom rumor would have in a perpetual quarrel with the President, really spent a pleasant time in social business chat with him recently, and in the anxiety to know all that transpired the absent reporter referred to unkindly discloses the sum and substance of the happy interview, as well as the forth coming proclamation to Congress. What the Washington report don't know in advance of its birth, is comparatively little indeed.

The Governor's Cabinet.

As to the cabinet officers of Governor Hastings, many of those who were in hopeful suspense are still suspended, since it is now published as a well-grounded fact that Frank Reeder, of Northampton county will be his Secretary of State; Henry Clay McCormick, of Lycoming county, will be his Attorney General; Thomas J. Stewart, of Montgomery county, Adjutant General; Col. James H. Lambert, of Philadelphia, Insurance Commissioner; and Lewis E. Butler, of Philadelphia, his Private Secretary. Though there's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip, this is the next cabinet according to Philadelphia lawyers who ought to know some little time ahead of the official announcement.

AN EVOLUTION THROUGH WAR.

As evil is frequently overruled for good, so we now confidently anticipate a substantial moral evolution to result from the war now in progress between little Japan and big China. The various unavailing missionary organizations, representing every organized church in christendom, having tried in vain for centuries through moral suasion and billions of money, are today confounded and demoralized in the face of God's more effective plan to save the heathen and to relieve the christians who need their money at home the worst kind of way for the propagation of christianity pure and simple. The more effective Power that gave the Children of Israel freedom through war (and in fact all other people that have since been cruelly oppressed, whether through the extremes of idolatry or the higher order of luxuriant aristocracy) we verily believe has now commenced the beginning of the end of all heathendom on earth. Among the missionaries abroad consternation already prevails in consequence of the war, and all church organizations are piteously appealed to for money. Money, indeed, works wonders in temporal and political affairs, but in spiritual affairs it is quite possible to exact and spend too much of it to no purpose. In the fulness of time things come to pass in God's providence, but never until that fulness of time has arrived.

Chairman Wilson in Massachusetts.

At a recent reception and dinner tendered Mr. Wilson in Boston, Mass., by some seventy-five of the leading Democrats of the State, he spoke as follows:

"I do not feel, and I am sure I feel still less than ever before, any special reason to be cast down by the somewhat unexpected reverse of last election. I am sure I have not myself any feeling of despondency concerning my own candidacy or the general results, or as regards the fate of the Democratic party, for this reason: During the past ten years we have taken up a great issue and have fought it out as no other great issue was ever fought out in the history of politics. We have succeeded in placing on the statute books of the country not so good a law as we ought to have put there, but a law as to whose permanency I have no sort of doubt. Whatever we have done will remain. I do not believe we will ever go back to what the President has so aptly called mad protection." When people begin to realize in their own homes and living the beneficient work of the Democratic party, I believe they will come back to sustain us. For this reason I am not cast down by the result of the election. We have simply encountered, first, a hard fight of all parties and, second, an impossible fight with that which they call "hard times."

"This was not a deliberate condemnation of our party, and what it has done. The kick came from the heels of the American people—there was very little brains in it. I know we have suffered for reasons for which we are not particularly responsible for, I admit that some of our work has been done in a bungling manner. But in a popular government run by 15,000,000 voters there will always be some hesitating and bungling work. An autocracy or a bureaucracy can be run with greater steadiness and accuracy, but popular government we must have, if we have it at all, at the price of bungling work."

Right You Are.

The Danville Intelligencer of last week says:

One thing we noticed on Nov. 6th while at the polling booth in the Third Ward, that no voter was questioned whether he had paid State or County tax within two years. On enquiry of the election board as to their action in this matter, they all stated that it had not been done throughout the day, and that they had no record furnished them of delinquent tax-payers on the registry list. There appears to be a remisness here unparalelled. The law peremptorily directs that no person shall vote who has not paid a State or County tax within two years, and such vote cast is illegal and the offender liable to be prosecuted. There needs a reform here. Another matter, every year candidates are bled to pay for delinquent tax-payers. According to the method adopted at the Third Ward poll and probably at the others, it is downright robbery to bleed a candidate thus, when a fellow who has not paid taxes perhaps for a dozen years is allowed to vote the same as the property owner or other citizen who has conformed to the laws in paying taxes.

The Cause of It, as Seen by Others.

Vice-President Stevenson, being questioned concerning Democratic defeat, says of it:

"My opinion can be briefly stated. The result is due in part, to the financial depression which came upon the country soon after the inauguration of Mr. Cleveland. While the Democrats were in no way responsible for this, they were made the scapegoats. It was also due in part to the delay of congress in passing the tariff bill. Had the bill become a law ninety days earlier than it did, it is quite probable that the business conditions of the country would so have adjusted themselves that the political result would have been different."

Embassador Bayard says of it:

"I have had grave apprehensions as to the result of the recent elections for some time. It was by no means an absolute surprise to me. I don't want to run afoul of these gentleman who were responsible for the delay in the passage of the tariff bill, but, as I say, the path of duty is unmistakable, and the necessity for pure Democratic tariff legislation was never so great as it is now. The bills for free raw materials should be passed immediately, and then the country will be able to contemplate the Democratic idea of the tariff in full working order for two years before another national election rolls around. If this is done, I have little fear that the verdict will be satisfactory in 1896."

Chairman Wilson, with characteristic fairness and ability, accepts the invitation of the Philadelphia Inquirer to give his views at large in the issue of that paper dated November 12th. So full of hard, common sense and sound, logical argument is his letter upon the true causes and effects of the recent Democratic defeat that none but the prejudiced can hold that his views are ill founded or illogical. It is by far the best solution yet given that we have seen from either a republican or democratic source; but for want of space and the length of his argument we should be pleased to reproduce his entire letter.

He admits that there were strong forces prevalent that shaped and brought about the result, being of more importance than the unpopularity of individual candidates. And says the greatest of all these forces was the severe industrial depression which had hardened the lot and lives of so many. Hard times, he declared was more than any party could withstand and retain control, and he cited repeated historical instances to show it conclusively. This deplorable fact he regarded as one of the weak points of popular government.

The wisest administration of government snd the most wholesome laws he declared to be unavailing with labor unemployed, farm products low, and the financial system disorganized. Popular discontent, though brought about by the inequitable laws of the ousted party may easily be used as a powerful leverage to regain control. Its tremendous effect is well known to both parties, and it was certainly used to advantage by the calamity howler during this campaign. He remarked that "the counsels of calamity are seldom wise, and that a vast multitude of voters rush blindly to the assault with no correct idea of what they are to gain, but having the consciousness of their own hurt they are eager to punish somebody for it, and that somebody is always the ruling party. Today the Republican party is the beneficiary of popular discontent, in the past Democracy has fared quite as well. And in common with other progressive nations we, too are passing through an era of change, an era of unrest, and tumultuous agitation. Were a proper apportionment of the responsibility for the hard times to be meeted out to the controling powers he thought the Democratic party could stoutly disclaim any large share of it.

In every campaign from 1886 to 1894 reforming and reducing the tariff has been the great and winning issue with Democracy. In 1886 it won a decided victory on that issue. Punishment is not meted out because of tariff reformation but rather because of failure to act promptly and thoroughly complete the work promised to be fulfilled. Mr. Wilson isnot without hope for the future by any means.

Annual Report of State Superintendent of Schools.

From advance sheets furnished the press the substance of the Annual Report is gathered. Superintendent Dr. Schaeffer regards the free text book law as a most progressive step, holding that it results in increased attendance from 20 per cent. in some places to 30 per cent. in others. The practical workings of the law are favorably spoken of by Superintendents almost without exception. In but one county did the new act cause directors to reduce wages and shorten the term.

The report says that Pennsylvania does not give her children school facilities equal to those ot adjacent States notwithstanding the magnificent school appropriations and her marvelous wealth. More conditions, the Superintendent holds, should be attached to the distribution of the State appropriations. To ascertain how many school children are out of school the Superintendent suggests the appointment of truant-officers in the various districts. He also recommends an extension if the high-school system to the township, districts and also an amendment to the law which would authorize directors to use a portion of the annual appropriation for the purpose of establishing and maintaining school libraries.

Dr. Schaeffer also commends the patriotic orders for causing the stars and stripes to be displayed on school buildings. But he says in this connection that the scholars should be taught what the flag stands for. Great care, he holds, should be made in the selection of teachers as well as in the selection of school directors.

The report dwells at some length upon the peril of sectarianism. It says plainly: "It is clearly not the function of the public schools to give sectarian instruction," and he deplores the policy which some boards are accused of tacitly adopting, namely, the employment only of teachers ot their own religious faith or political party or secret society. This, the Superintendent claims, cannot be too strongly condemned.

The statistical summary reveals that there are now 2,413 school districts in the State; 24,541 schools; 12,869 graded schools; 129 superintendents; 8,464 male teachers; 17,777 female teachers, or 26 241 all told.

The average salaries of male teachers is given as $44.16 per month, and the pay of females is averaged at $33 05 per month. The average length of school term is 8 months, and the full number of pupils 1,040.697. The average number of pupils in attendance 759,560.

The cost of school houses, purchasing buildings, renting, etc. $3,396,818,13; teachers' wages, $8,998,343.66; cost of school text books, $1,245,375.73; cost of school supplies other than text books, including maps, globes, etc., not including Philadelphia, $559,238.42; fuel, contingencies, fees of collectors and all other expenses, $1,386,975.39; total expenditures $18,586,751.33; State appropriation for school year ending June, 1893, $5,000,000; estimated value of school property not including Philadelphia $42.679,504. A comparison with the previous year shows an increase of twenty-seven districts, 529 schools, 565 graded schools 36,272 pupils and $529,906.78 in wages of teachers.

Dr. Parkhurst, the famous New York renovator, is becoming somewhat involved in a newspaper controversy with Mr. Platt about who is boss of the legislature. We believe it possible for Dr. Parkhurst to be either a moral reformer or a political boss; but we don't think that man lives who can successfully fill both of these important offices at once, and if the doctor has one well in hand he had better take Platt's advice and drop the other.

HE CAUGHT THE TEACHERS.

Dr. J. P. Welsh Takes Their Part--A Vote Of Thanks Tendered.

The Harrisburg Patriot of Friday last contained the following concerning our distinguished townsman, Dr. J. P. Welsh:

The most popular speaker at yesterday's sessions of the Dauphin county Teachers' Institute, as far as the teachers were concerned, was Dr. J. P. Welsh, principal of the State Normal School at Bloomsburg. Dr. Welsh, plain-spoken if anything, made an address in the afternoon on "The Part in Education Which the Teacher Does Not Have." He was down on the program to speak on "The Teacher's Part in Education." In addressing the Institute he said the subject assigned did not suit him. When he gave it to Superintendent McNeal to be placed upon the program he had not given it the thought it deserved. "Instead of speaking upon what the teacher does in education," said he, "I wish to talk on that part the teacher does not have. I wish to consider those elements which have to do with the first six years of a child's life or that period preceeding the time when it is handed over to the school teacher." He referred to the child as a bundle of possibilities.

"On the training it receives prior to being placed in school depends a great deal its future. He alluded somewhat bitterly to the failure of fathers and mothers to give the proper early training to children and with no little sarcasm said the primary school teacher was expected to make good boys and girls of them. "No doubt," the speaker said, "one of these children can send its mother to bed with the headache every night. What then," he asked, "can a teacher be expected to do with twenty-five or thirty of them? Parents teach their children most everything excepting how to be good fathers and mothers." He pointed to the great difficulty in the matter as being a lack of knowledge on the part of the parents; their utter incompetency to properly train. Dr. Welsh told a story of a visit to a doctor, an old college classmate, during his vacation. He was anxious that the doctor accompany him fishing. The doctor was unable to go, however, because of his having to visit a patient—a ten-months old baby suffering frow dyspepsia.

"What!" said Dr. Welsh, "Is that baby's stomach ruined already?' "That's about it," was the reply. "Its parents have been feeding it buckwheat cakes and sausage."

When the doctor returned, having prescribed a diet of milk on his first visit, he told the speaker the youngster was sitting at the table eating his buckwheat cakes and sausage. Such diet for a baby struck the teachers as being extremely ludicrous and there was considerable laughter.

Dr. Welsh said there was great need of moral training on the part of parents. He said the teacher received but little assistance in the average home and yet parents insisted on complaining that their boys and girls were not what they ought to be. "Good citizenship," he said, "was the object of the State in establishing public schools and," he added "the teachers ought to have the co-operation of every parent in attaining this object. This co operation was too frequently absent, however." At the conclusion of his address Professor L. H. Gause, an old city teacher, arose and moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Welsh for taking the part of teachers and for his able address. Superintendent Mr. McGinnes, of the Steelton Schools who was presiding, put the vote and heard in response a hearty chorus of ayes.

The Bloomsburg Daily, May 3, '93 says of the concert given by Elwell's Orchestra on May 2, '93.

"One of the largest and most select audiences that ever attended the Opera House was assembled there Tuesday evening to attend the Orchestral Concert. It was one of the finest musical treats our people ever had an opportunity of listening to, and convinced those present that we have an orchestra of which we can feel justly proud. Chas. P. Elwell, the leader is to be congratulated upon the good success of his concert."

Opera House, Bloomsburg Nov. 28, 1894.

When base-ballers quit playing and go to calling each other traitors over the honors and the spoils it is time to change the game to foot ball or something mild and gentle like. We quote the recent impressive but demoralizing words of the National League: "To-day the future of base ball is confronted by treachery within the lines." In consequence of this important discovery the so-called traitors, Buckinburger, Barnie and Peffer, were recently recommended for expulsion, they having only until December 3d to set things right. But a good base-ball player can accomplish a great deal between this and December 3d.

The COLUMBIAN of May 5th '93 says of the concert given by Elwell's Orchestra on May 2 '93:

"The members of the Orchestra have every reason to feel well satisfied with themselves. Their concert on Tuesday night was a great success in every respect. The program was performed in a most pleasing manner, and the audience which was one of the largest that has gathered in the Opera House for some time, as well as one of the most select, was enthusiastic in its appreciation. The Orchestra is a credit to the town and well merit the encouragement they have received."

Bloomsburg has upset the "due bill" and credit system. Every one ought to sing over that, for now farmers can sell their produce for cash.

The people from over the river come to us free over the new iron bridge. They find us just as free to take their cash for a good coat, cape, dress pattern, trimmings, notions, domestics, flannels, underwear, hosiery, gloves, &c., with a large line of chenille goods, in table covers and curtains. We run on a line of goods not found in many stores, have always on hand about 300 pocket books and card cases, a line of silver ware (at cut prices) in knives and forks, table spoons, nut cracks, shoe buttoners, pie knives, &c., with a big lot of albums, pictures and picture frames. Fine chinaware for presents. We are now gathering the christmas stock, (are in the city this week). People will not only come to us from over the new bridge, but by the railroads and the wagon roads leading to our place. After Thanksgiving we will turn our store up side down and the holiday goods will fall on top. Just in, new fur and plush capes from $10.00 to $32.50.

THE PROBLEMS FOLLOWING THE "TIGER HUNT."

How Tammany Failed to Meet a New and Difficult Situation—New York was Europeanized—How Shall the War on Vice be Waged.

Special New York Letter.

The campaign of 1894 against Tammany Hall—the "tiger hunt," as the local press delights to call it—will go into history as one of the liveliest political scrimmages this town has ever seen. It is a sufficiently notable victory against machine politics to render it forever memorable. Up to within three weeks of the election, there was apparently good ground for the confidence of the Tammany leaders that the power of the historic organization could not be overthrown. It was dissensions within the organization that paved the way for Tammany defeat. Like other political machines built up by the spoils system, the Tammany organization is strong only when successful. The effect of the Lexow investigation was to weaken the prestige of the organization with many of its most respectable members. Mayor Gilroy became in a measure the head of this faction of purists, who desired to rid Tammany of the elements that had brought it to disgrace. This led to an intense civic conflict in the face of the enemy, and with the knowledge that the organization was divided against itself there set in a considerable stampede among the rank and file. Many lesser candidates proceeded to make deals with the object of saving themselves, and so the great political machine that achieved so notable a victory last fall went to pieces this year like a panic-stricken army.

Mayor Elect Strong.

Mayor-elect Strong has an opportunity presented to him for useful public service that no citizen has ever before had in New York. So many and such important questions of public improvement and reform are awaiting solution that a man of real genius for municipal government could scarcely fail to achieve fame. The control of great cities is becoming a science by itself, and is likely in the near future to be treated entirely as a separate branch of politics. It is a great responsibility that faces the new Mayor, as the chances for blunders are quite as large as the opportunities for usefulness. The causes of public dissatisfaction with Tammany did not relate entirely to questions of misgovernment. It is generally conceded that the recent city government has been able and successful in many directions. New York, however, has in recent years become the home of thousands of the most oppressed and indigent human beings in the whole world. The problem of assimulating this vast mass of indigestable European wretchedness has not been successfully met by Tammany. It has been a festering sore in the body politic, productive of popular vice, and gradually involving the police department in the degrading influences that have eminated from it. I think it can be fairly claimed that the wretchedness and crime that have made certain portions of our city cesspools of vice and debauchery is not of local origin. It has been transferred here almost bodily from Europe. The very system of police tyranny and corruption is of foreign origin. The overthrow of Tammany is, therefore, a direct blow at methods that have tended constantly to make the government of this city foreign rather than American.

The influences with which Tammany failed to successfully cope remain to be dealt with. It is a deep and treacherous problem. It demands a system of moral and legal treatment that is rather experimental in any case. While the Police Department has kept down anarchistic sentiment, it has been by winking at or catering to the vices that are natural to degraded natures. Yet European governments have nearly always pandered to vice as a means of diverting the poor and wretched from uprisings. Tammany has really dealt with a European problem by European methods.

The problem is not new. The government of London is even now being shaken by it. What is claimed to be the best system of municipal government in the world (the London councils) has not been equal to settling the question of decent streets and decent amusements.

Some of the shrewdest Tammany officials expect to see the new administration make a failure of its attempt to purify the city. We shall see. Recorder Goff will certainly be able to attend to the criminal part of the programme. While Rev. Dr. Parkhurst instituted the war upon vice, it is generally agreed that the success of the attack has been due to the genius and indefatigable labor of John W. Goff.

It is probable that the new city government may wisely conclude that some evils are capable only of regulation, and proceed to those larger questions that build up civic virtue by promoting order, thrift and local improvement. It is very certain that more good can be done by reforming the tenement system of this city than by pursuing the miserable victims of poverty with the severity of the law. The success of the reform movement now depends upon scientific rather than upon Puritanical methods.

MILTON S. MATHEW.

NEW YORK POLITICS.

Official Changes That May Result From the Political Revolution.

Special Albany Letter.

Everybody here is discussing the coming political changes. The Republican victory has been so complete that it is now in the power of the Republicans to secure nearly every office under the State government. The burning question is whether the new administration will observe the spirit of the civil service law or make a clean sweep. The Republican "boys" are certainly in favor of turning out every Democrat who can be reached.

The executive clerks and appointees of the Governor number about twelve, and charges are expected in this office. Gov.-elect Morton has been so prominent as a financier and statesman that he necessarily has his own faithful assistants and followers, whom he will wish to reward.

The Lieutenant-Governor has no important appointments in his own right but in connection with the Governor and Speaker of the Assembly, he controls considerable patronage, among which is the Superintendent of Public Buildings, who has a salary of $3,600 and has 300 lucrative places to give out. Senator Saxton, who will succeed Lieutenant-Governor Sheehan, is an active and popular politician, and will no doubt wish to look after his followers.

The most important charges will be made by the Governor and Senate. The following offices now held by Democrats will probably be changed:

Superintendent of Public Works, salary $6,000, patronage about 300 employees.

Superintendent of State Prisons, salary $5,000; patronage includes about thirty people.

Bank Superintendent, $5,000; patronage amounts to about forty employees.

Dairy Commissioner, salary $3,000 patronage about thirty people.

Commissioner of New Capitol, salary $7,500; patronage about 2,000 people.

Society in Albany will welcome Gov. Morton with much cordiality. It is expected that the Executive Mansion will be the scene of a generous hospitality during the coming administration. Mr. Morton's great wealth, and the charming social graces of his wife, it is believed, insure a social renaissance during the coming winter. W. L. O.

Persons Who See Ghosts.

Have you ever seen a ghost? Such in simple words, is the extremely interesting question addressed by the Society of Psychical Research to some 17,000 persons, male and female. The results are included in "A Report on the Census of Hallucinations," published in the latest edition of the proceedings of the society. The question, of course, was framed in much more elegant and detailed form than the somewhat abrupt inquiry into which most people will translate it, but whether we call "the spook" a "living being," or "inanimate object," it comes to pretty much the same thing, so long as there is no external physical cause to account for the phenomenon. And now for the results. Out of the 17,000 persons interrogated, 15,316 answered in the negative, leaving only a meagre 9 per cent. of people who had been favored by extraordinary experiences.

This is at least consolatory for those who still believe in the sanity of the human race. But the relative proportion of men and women who saw visions and dreamed is still more remarkable. Only 655 males answered in the affirmative, but as many as 1,029 females. And yet there are some people who get angry if it be asserted that women are more credulous and hysterical than men. Clearly there is some work for the "New Woman" to do in the conversion of her neurotic sisters.—London Telegraph.

He Probably Saw Her.

"Did you tell Mr. Getthere I was not in?" said Miss Dukkets.

"I did, mum," said Bridget.

"What did he say?"

"He said, 'Well, tell her to come down as soon as she is in.' He's in the parlor."—Rare Bits.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16¼ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the gentler sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one Magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of the whole family.

A clear and concise treatise upon the cause of Japan's war against China and the characteristics of both nations, as to politics, religion and commerce, would sell well today. Something cheap but reliable in pamphlet form would take well no doubt, while an expensive and prosey history would not.

Japan don't ask for all the soil that China still occupies and thinks is her own, but she does demand one or two hundred millions in cash besides such territory as she may think she needs, before she proposes to quit shooting or talk about compromise through the good agency of the United States Government as a peacemaker. Japan evidently has her Dutch up, while China is panic stricken from center to circumference.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

Interesting Items From Various Points in the County. Reported by Our Staff of Correspondents.

EAST BENTON.

Hon. James McHenry of Cambra, has returned from the city with a full assortment of fall and winter goods.

The road question does not agitate our people nearly as much as the question of bridges. Our township is traversed by numerous small streams, and old wooden bridges need to be superceded by more substantial structures.

A protracted series of meetings was begun at Hamiline week ago last Sunday night by Rev. King of the Benton M. E. charge. That a great revival may result from this protracted effort is devoutly hoped and wished for.

A bridge at this place over one branch of Ravencreek was torn out, preparatory to the building of a new arch stone structure.

We notice a great many hunters promenading the secret haunts of game with empty knapsacks. Evidently the game like the Democrats, went into their holes, and pulled the holes in after them.

Sile McHenry, of Cambra, spent a week in Wyoming County, hunting. We are informed that he returned after bagging 72 pheasants, 20 ducks and a thousand, more or less—yes, many more, or many less, of woodcock.

The farmers generally in this locality are nearly ready to go into winter quarters. But the "barrel" of cider is lacking in the social enjoyment of evening visits among the neighbors But then we are not now on the eve of a "hard cider campaign."

A few weeks of fine weather is desirable to consummate the necessary fall work before the advent of winter.

General panic and general depression played general havoc with general consumption and the general ballots played the deal with faithless Democratic leaders; but, the "Wilson Bill" will even all things up for '96.

The coal oil excitement in lower Luzerne County of which we read so much in the papers of late, like the different railroads never develop any further than the newspapers develop them. We would like to see them go to digging.

Political lightning strikes with crushing effect; but it always does the most damage where it don't hit.

The troubled political seas are not yet at rest. The tide among the surging masses rises higher and higher—and well may the leaders of all political parties tremble in their boots. The coming storms will be still more cyclonic.

One of the best signs of the times is, that the people are no longer "hide bound," nor wedded to any political party. Bosses and ring rule get smashed as soon as any machine attempts, to operate in lieu of the will of the people. After all, wherever the voters assert their independence then are they free and independent.

Old Joe Spinnagle, who was a candidate from the 99th Congressional district for Congress was the worst defeated man that ever ran for any office. On hearing the news the next morning he remarked that he was the "only man that ever survived a plunge in the rapids of Niagra falls."

"You even didn't take de life boat mid you, did you Joe?" remarked old mamma Spinnagle.

The sale of the Marcley property was adjourned until Saturday at 2 p. m. in front of Court House.

BENTON.

J. B. McHenry and his party returned home last Saturday night with two more deer, they are certainly in luck.

Miss Dolly Crossley is visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. B. Hartman of Wilkes-Barre.

A. W. McHenry is laying a foundation for a new barn, on Spangler Street.

Chas. Carpenter supplies the town and vicinity with fresh fish now a days.

J. B. McHenry will move to Bloomsburg in January—our loss and Bloomsburg's gain. Boyd has been a kind neighbor to all.

Frank Fields, of Jamison City, Sundayed at Benton, stopping at the McHenry House.

Our schools are progressing finely now.

Mrs. G. B. Crossley returned home from Wilkes-Barre last week, where she has been visiting the past month.

Kemp's store rooms are ready for occupancy. They are neat and just what some one wants.

The Ball to be given at the Exchange Hotel, Thanksgiving Eve, promises to be better in every respect than all others ever held there before.

The farmers are selling cabbage at five cents a head in this section.

Chet Cox, of Millville, transacted business here Wednesday.

Supervisor Kline is getting the public roads in good condition for winter traveling.

Undisputed Merit.

The great success of the Royal Baking Powder is due to the extreme care exercised by its manufacturers to make it entirely pure, uniform in quality, and of the highest leavening power. All the scientific knowledge, care and skill, attained by a twenty years' practical experience are contributed toward this end, and no pharmaceutical preparation can be dispensed with a greater accuracy, precision and exactness. Every article used is absolutely pure. A number of chemists are employed to test the strength of each ingredient, so that its exact power and effect in combination with its co-ingredients are definitely known. Nothing is trusted to chance, and no person is employed in the preparation of the materials used or the manufacture of the powder, who is not an expert in his particular branch of the business. As a consequence, the Royal Baking Powder is of the highest grade of excellence, always pure, wholesome and uniform in quality. The contents of each box are exactly like every other, and will retain their powers and produce the same and the highest leavening effect in any climate, at any time. The Government chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands in the market, in their reports placed the Royal Baking Powder at the head of the list for strength, purity and wholesomeness and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivalled.

Free Agricultural Instruction.

We are in receipt of a neatly illustrated catalogue of the Courses in Agriculture at the Pennsylvania State College. In addition to the regular Collegiate Course the College offers a twelve weeks' free lecture in Agriculture, Horticulture and Veterinary Science, adapted to the wants of the general farmer; two six weeks' Courses for dairymen—one to fit men to manage creameries and one for the dairy farmer.

These Short Courses are within the easy reach of every farmer in this County and should be liberally patronized.

The College also offers a carefully arranged Course of home reading in agriculture and horticulture, which is free with the exception of a small cost for books.

In a recent address before the State Board of Agriculture; Ex-Governor Beaver made the statement that there should be at least one thousand young farmers in these lecture Courses this winter, and many times this number in the Course of home reading.

Address Professor H. J. Waters, State College, Centre County, for catalogues.

Winter Excursion Tickets on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

On November 1st the Pennsylvania Railroad Company placed on sale at all its principal ticket offices excursion tickets to all the prominent winter resorts. This territory includes the resorts of New Jersey, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Cuba. The tickets are sold at the usual low rates.

The magnificent facilities of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with its many connections, make this the favorite line for winter travel.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Schaeffer has notified the secretaries of the boards of school directors in the several school districts of the State that the directors may determine for themselves in all cases which days are designated by law as public holidays in their respective districts. In case the schools are open for regular instruction on these days the time can be counted, reported and paid for the same as other days constituting a school month.

The Railroad Man, The Clergyman, The Business Man, and all other men who have to look neat while at work, should know about "CELLULOID" COLLARS AND CUFFS. They look exactly like linen, wear well and being waterproof do not wilt down with heat and moisture. They do not soil easily and can be cleaned in a moment by simply wiping off with a wet sponge or cloth. Do not confuse these in your mind with composition goods. Every piece of the genuine is stamped like this:

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

Ask for these and refuse anything else if you wish satisfaction. Remember that goods so marked are the only waterproof goods made by coating a linen collar with waterproof "Celluloid," thus giving strength and durability. If your dealer should not have the "Celluloid" send amount direct to us and we will mail you sample post-paid. Collars 25c. each. Cuffs, 50c. pair. State size and whether stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted.

H. G. Lee in Trouble.

Here is the Story He Tells a Sun Reporter.

The party named in the following article from the Williamsport Sun, of last Friday, spent some time in Bloomsburg in the interest of the association mentioned. The Sun says:

Hinton G. Lee, formerly manager of the local branch of the Anglo-American Savings and Loan association of New York, who was arrested in New York Saturday night on a warrant issued by Thomas Kahler, of Hughesville, charged with defrauding him of $650, arrived in the city last night in charge of Chief of Police Russell.

Among the earliest callers that met the accused agent in his cell yesterday was a Sun reporter. Prior to the latter's interview Lee had been in consultation with two of his warmest friends, he claimed—H. W. Whitehead, Esq., who is at present representing the Anglo-American company in this city, and James Mansel a well-known lumberman. Aside from requesting Mr. Whitehead to engage him counsel, Lee claimed the meeting had no other significance than a friendly call. The Sun representative was greeted with a warm shake of the hand by Lee when he stepped to the entrance.

LEE'S STORY.

"Come in and be seated. I can only offer you the accomodations at hand—a chair, or perhaps you will take a seat on my cot? Have I anything to say? Yes; this much you can say for Lee: that so far as having misappropriated funds with criminal intent, I am innocent, as the Most High is my judge. I admit, however, I was indiscreet, grossly indiscreet. Not extravagant, mind you, not in high living, not through any of the excesses which people are so apt to think is the primary cause of all downfalls. No, sir; it was none of them." Here Lee was overcome and turned his head to wipe away the tears.

HE SHEDS TEARS.

"You will find," he went on, "or I'm no prophet, that when my books are laid bare for inspection, when my transactions are opened to public inspection and criticism, the very men who are prosecuting me now will, when the truth is known, want to befriend me. I admit receiving $650 by check from Mr. Kahler, for which he was to receive preferred stock of the Anglo American association. John H. Gwinner was another patron of one and one-half shares of a like issue. They did not receive the shares purchased, but the money was deposited in the Merchant's National bank, and was paid out for legitimate expenses in carrying on the business of the association. Every dollar was spent in this city. The fabrication that I used the money on Wall street is made out of whole cloth. I never in my life invested one penny in Wall street."

Again Mr. Lee turned aside to brush away the tears. Resuming, he said: "I feel my position keenly; I am a broken man without money. But I have this satisfaction," tapping his breast, "in here my conscience tells me that I am innocent of any wrong doing I have blundered to an extent that now appears appalling, but I was led on by the desire to place my company in the first rank. I worked day and night with this sole purpose, for by doing so I was advancing my own interests.

A RAP AT HIS AGENTS.

"Then again. I employed too many incompetent agents, some of whom I paid $80 per month and expenses Their returns frequently were not more than sufficient to offset the sum expended in railroad fare for a day's ride. I kept them on, hoping they would do better, but the idea was elusive and into their pockets went the bulk of the money with which I am charged."

Lee then began to talk in a rambling, unconnected manner, telling how he had been reared in luxury in Georgia, never having experienced want. The present circumstances were in strange contrast to what he had been used to. Until now he had not known the value of a dollar. It was a matter of little moment when he was himself, whether a transaction in which he was interested involved $500 or $1,000, it was all the same.

WHERE THE MONEY WENT.

Catching himself wandering from the subject, Lee broke out with: "Tell the people that Lee will ask for three disinterested persons to examine his books and let them make public any disclosure that may seem fit. I will face my accusers and when they know all, they will not spurn Lee, but, I venture to say, will take his hand. The books will show the money went to increase the operations of the company and not one penny more than was necessary for maintenance for Lee and his family went in that direction."

With all Lee's talk he failed to reply each time to the questions put to him as to the reason why Kahler and Gwinner did not receive their stock. He talks freely on every topic save that transaction.

Mr. Lee's agents claim that he owes them from $50 to $100 apiece for work.

In speaking of the affair to-day, Mr. Kahler said that the company has offered to deliver the ten shares of stock for which he paid Lee. but since the trouble he has declined to accept the proffer, but wants his money.

WAIVED A HEARING.

Lee appeared at 2 o'clock in company with his counsel, Hon. W. E. Ritter, and Chief of Police Russell. He waived a hearing and bail was fixed at $1,000. Not finding a bondsmen he was remanded for trial at the December criminal sessions.
